

Secret Student Explained

Every day one child is secretly chosen by the teacher as a secret student; the key to this activity is that the children do not know who the secret student is, therefore everyone must behave well. To ensure all children have the chance of being the secret student, put all names in a hat and randomly choose one a day. In the morning during registration the teacher tells the class that the secret student has been chosen and if they achieve, for example, ten positives by the end of the day, the whole class will be rewarded and the secret student's identity is revealed (if the class do not achieve the set goal then the student's identity is not revealed).

Use the downloadable posters to record how many times the secret student follows your direction.
